Sept. 25, 2008 – Seattle, WA – Athena Partners®, known for its socially conscious Athena bottled water, today announced a delicious new way to help find a cure for breast cancer – Athena™ Chocolate. One hundred-percent of Athena Partners' net profits from the premium chocolate brand will support breast cancer research and education. Coinciding with Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Athena Chocolate debuts nationwide October 1 for purchase in more than 1,000 leading retail outlets and online.

Athena Chocolates are premium confections specially created for Athena Partners by world renown chocolatier Dilettante Chocolates. Using only the highest quality ingredients from around the world, the new chocolates draw upon Dilettante's master chocolatier heritage using time-honored techniques and family recipes passed through three generations.

"Athena is empowering everyone to make a difference in the fight against breast cancer through the purchase of delicious Athena products," said Trish May, Athena Partners founder and a breast cancer survivor. "Athena Chocolate is the only premium chocolate brand that devotes one hundred-percent of company profits to the cause year-round. Every chocolate sold brings us closer to a cure, and together, we can make a difference!"
